THE PANORAMA AND THE LION'S MOUND

The Panorama

The Panorama is home to the canvas painted by Louis Dumoulin in 1912 for the celebration of the first centenary of the battle. This gigantic fresco is of spectacular dimensions: 110 metres in circumference and 12 metres high. The magnificent Waterloo Panorama depicts a key moment in the thick of the battle. On a 360° surface, Louis Dumoulin has shown Polish Lancers, the charge of General Ney, Napoleon surrounded by his staff and the resistance of the English squares around Wellington.

The Lion's Mound

The Lion's Mound was built between 1824 and 1826 at the spot where it is believed the Prince of Orange, Grand Duke of Luxembourg and King of the Netherlands, was wounded on 18th June 1815. A cast-iron Lion is perched at the top of the 226 steps up the hill, a 40-metre-high symbol of victory. It "announces the peace that Europe won in the fields of Waterloo".

THE HOUGOUMONT FARM

This fortified farm saw some bloody fighting. It was an advanced position which protected the allies' right flank together with the Haie-Sainte and Papelotte farms. Napoleon attacked it on 18 June towards 11:30 am. What was originally intended as a diversionary tactic became the most violent point of the fighting. The French launched all-out assaults on it but to no avail. The Hougoumont Farm displays a brand-new scenography: 4 exhibition rooms coupled with an impressive multimedia show. During the week-end, a free shuttle links the Memorial to the Farm.
